CONDITIONS OF SALE

The following conditions are understood to be acknowledged by all persons participating in the auction, whether bidding in the room on their own account or executing commissions for others or submitting bids by post or fax.

Estimates are in UK Pounds and opening bids will be about 80% of estimate, unless there are higher offers. The purchase price is in UK pounds, together with a buyer's premium of 15 %, or, for residents of the EU, 17.625 % including VAT, with postage charges where applicable, the total sum being due after the final bid and payable on delivery. There is a 3 % service charge for purchases by credit card. Late payment of the invoice, which is due upon receipt, will incur interest at current bank rate. Adjudication ensues after the highest bid and commits the bidder to accept the coins. Written bids have preference over room bids. In the case of competing equal written bids, the first received takes precedence. The buyer cannot claim to act on behalf of a third party.

Authenticity of the coins is unconditionally guaranteed, without time limit. All identifications of the items sold in this catalogue are statements of opinion and made in good faith.

Despatching of purchases is normally registered and insured at the purchaser's expense. The purchaser is responsible for any dues or taxes outside the EU and is advised to acquaint himself with the formalities. The auctioneer cannot be held responsible for contraventions.

The auctioneer may change the order of lots in the catalogue or unite lots; lots however cannot be divided. Where, in error, text and plate numbers are mismatched, the text number takes precedence. The auction is held in London and any legal questions arising shall be there determined.

The coins will be on view at our premises until and including 5th February

THE WILLIAM SUBJACK COLLECTION OF COINS OF THE GERMANIC MIGRATIONS

PART III

LATE ROMANS AND EARLY GERMANS

What little we know about the mental furniture of the Germanic peoples in that period which is generally thought of as the time of the decline and fall of the Roman Empire is for most of us limited to memories of Wagner writing at his most heroic, and, for a few, of sad stumblings through the sombre battles of Beowulf. Nor is this to be wondered at, for by the eighth century the very tribes who in the fifth century had, according to the contemporary Roman historian Salvian, littered the ruins of burnt imperial cities with the bloody mangled corpses of the victims of their greed and ferocity had themselves been wiped out as political entities by their own nemeses, better organized societies of their own (rather mixed) descendants, as with the Franks, tougher and more astute versions of their own type, as with the Burgundians and Suevians (incorporating the earlier and better remembered Alamanni and Quadi) by Visigoths, and Visigoths (in their Gallic manifestation) in turn by Franks, vigorous outsiders, richer or more fanatical in their creeds, as with Ostrogoths and Vandals crushed by resurgent Constantinople and Spanish Visigoths overwhelmed by nascent Islam, or simply a succession of all or some of these factors, as with the Lombards. Asiatic intruders like the Huns and the Alans contributed their own meed of sorrow and succour to Goths and Romans alike, but were not long in being swallowed up in the grubby melting-pot of early dark-age Europe.

Freud asked, what do women really want ? Romans of the Christian empire asked, what do barbarians really want ?, but were dissatisfied to learn that they wanted only what Rome at its apogée had demanded: money, land and slaves, without feeling obliged to pay for them by constructing walled cities, roads, taxation-based – and at what a high rate ! – armies and fleets, or by adopting complex systems of philosophy and theology, manners and morals. Germans themselves had moved on from the austere democratic simplicities of their old tribal moralities so admired by Tacitus, disgusted by the ornamental tyranny of a Nero or a Domitian; ruled now by kings ambitious for power and money, they showed the later Romans their very own face unadorned by the cosmetics of civilisation and, corrupted and corrupting, in mutual contempt they fought with each other for the only prizes they could understand. For every upright Stilicho or Aetius, murdered for their loyalty by their imperial masters, there was a host of time-serving louts of the highest rank, so many in that time of careers open to the talents; for every virtuous and cultivated Frankish consul like Richomer or courageous and farsighted emperor like Majorian, there was a matching ruthless schemer like Ricimer, exploiter and caster-away of emperors, or Gaiseric, second sacker of Rome, or gilded cunning fool, like Valens, whose avaricious officers' contemptible treatment of a starving and terrified Visigothic horde, federates and defenders of the empire since Constantine I's time, fifty years before, precipitated the disaster of Adrianople, or Valentinian III, who set the western imperium on its final slide. Yet the diminishing supply of Roman peasants, bound to the soil by the great land owners, ensured that Germans were enlisted to fight Germans. The hapless Honorius, for instance, had depended until the time of the general's execution in 408 on Stilicho to keep Alaric in check. Freed from his rival, Alaric was able to invade Italy and sack Rome in 410; dying at Consentia a few months after, he was buried with his enormous treasure of plunder beneath the bed of the river Busentus, providing the probable inspiration for the fabled Rheingold.

The Huns, even before Attila, had, by fear, set the gentes barbarorum into new and frantic motion; the Roman East expelled them, but the West, gradually, succumbed. All though, dying or triumphant, sought the elixir, gold. In Italy, gold, struck in the name of the emperor at Constantinople, was won by force from Ostrogoths, restruck in Frankish royal names and distributed in Gaul, where, previously, Roman mints in the prevailing confusion seemed to have coined for emperor or king almost indifferently. When that source dried up, even domestically, generous aid was sought from Constantinople as once from Ravenna and Milan; as the recent Patching find has shown, contemporary Visigothic copies of Valentinian III's solidi were still entering Britain, whereas Byzantine pieces are rarely found here, distance lending disenchantment to barbarian views. Debased specie had once, in Honorius' day, when silver, too, was still being copied, furnished barbarous imitative money, but that was an occasional misery due to failures in imperial largesse, contrived or involuntary, and to be avoided by kingly ring-givers, but now it became inevitable, from Francia to Langobardia. Only Visigothic Spain long maintained a high standard, in metal if not in art.

Nonetheless, for four centuries there was a sort of chaotic oecomune as western or eastern Romans held up a golden labarum which successive waves of Germans, for though Huns loved the red metal, they coined none of their own, endeavoured to expropriate. The dominant culture triumphed, of course, though not financially; in coins denominations shrank, style collapsed, typology decayed, and legends became illiterate, but the denominations, style, types and legends still smelt sweetly of Romanitas. Two gigantic Germanic copies, weighing approximately ninty and fifty solidi respectively, cast gold but derived from struck medallions of, appropriately enough, Valens (strong the chief to wear about his neck from a chain these loop-mounted monsters!; perhaps his horse sported them), were found with orthodox (smaller) pieces at the empire's edge in what is now Hungary, Toynbee, Roman Medallions, p. 66, and Gnecchi, I medaglioni romani, pls. 8-9: a flawless illustration of pomp, greed and vulgarity. Where neither race, with rare exceptions, would willingly speak the language of the other nor, unless for advancement, share the same version of a shared religion, they could only taint teach other with mutual vices, only meet at the extremes of human emotion: when the great and civilised king Theodoric, restorer of Italy, felt betrayed by senatorial Boethius the philosopher, he had him beaten to death with clubs; and when Valentinian I, mild in religion and successful in war in an age of fierce dissension in church and state, was, while mounting his horse, let fall on his gouty foot, he instantly cut off the guilty groom's hand. Who was the barbarian ? Who the civilized man ? Only the return of happier times under Charlemagne began, though not for long, to disperse the gloom of a long nightmare. The poor, however, remained poor.

The Subjack collection, notably broad in its scope, is especially strong in pseudo-imperial Visigothic gold issues. Remarkable too is the representation of rare and important Burgundian and Suevic emissions, as well as of previously unpublished Gepid silver.

THE VISIGOTHS

In the name of Valens (364-378)

1 Solidus, Moesia or Thrace after 369, AV 4.33 g. OH VALEHS-TENV(for PER F) AVG Pearl-diademed, draped and cuirassed bust r. / SECVHITA-PVBLICA8 Rome and Constantinople enthroned supporting between them shield inscribed with VOV/V/H-T/X; in exergue, AHTI. Cf., for types, RIC XI Antioch 15b, for vota and mintmark 20b, and, for reverse legend, 36 (Æ 3). Very fine. £500

In the confused and unnecessary battle of Hadrianopolis in Thrace of 378, Valens was defeated and killed by the Visigoths, who were in turn mopped up and resettled by Gratian.

In the name of Honorius (393-423)

2 Solidus, Moesia or Thrace after c. 403, AV 4.36 g. D N HONORI-VS P F AVG Pearl-diademed, cuirassed and helmeted bust three-quarter facing, spear over r. shoulder and shield with horseman device on l. / CONCORDI-A AVGGZ Constantinopolis enthroned to front, head r., holding sceptre and victory on globe, r. foot on prow; in l. field, eight-pointed star, and, in exergue, CONOB. For type, cf. RIC 30. Good very fine £1,200

The above example copies Arcadius' eastern solidi in the name of Honorius.

RIC 3755. MEC 174. Very fine. £800

Ex CNG sale 41 1979, Byron Reed collection, 2373.

The mintmark R-A, derived perhaps from A-R (Arelate), though normal on the copies of Severus III, is very rare on imitations of Valentinian III and Majorian.

17 Solidus, Gaul, AV 4.23 g. Similar to previous, but SIVERVS. Very fine £500

This coin has strong iconic affinities with lot 10 above.

18 Tremissis, Gaul, AV 1.41 g. D N SEVER-VS P F AVG Pearl-diademed, draped and cuirassed bust r. / VICTORI-A AV GGG Victory stg. l., holding long jewelled cross; in exergue, COMOB. RIC 3760. Very rare and very fine. £400

From the same workshop as the previous lot.

In the name of Anthemius (467-472)

19 Tremissis, Gaul, AV 1.36 g. D N ANTHE-MIVS P F AVG Pearl-diademed, draped and cuirassed bust r. / Christogram within wreath; in exergue, COMOB. RIC 3765. Lacam 144. Extremely rare. Very fine. £800

Despite the marriage of Anthemius to Alypia, daughter of the general Ricimer, her father in 472 set up a rival emperor, Olybrius, and besieged Anthemius in Rome. When the city fell, Anthemius, disguised as a beggar, sought refuge in a church but was found and beheaded by Ricimer's nephew Gundobad. The hostile relations between Anthemius and the Visigoths is illustrated by the rarity of his imitations, only two recorded.

In the name of Julius Nepos (474-475)

20 Solidus, Gaul, AV 4.50 g. D N IVL NE-POS P F AVG Pearl-diademed, cuirassed and helmeted bust facing, spear over r. shoulder and shield with horseman device on l. / VICTORI-A AV GGG : Victory stg. l., holding long jewelled cross; in field, R-V, and, in exergue, COMOB *. Unpublished. A sharp extremely fine. £4,000

Attributed here on grounds of style; said to have been found in Tunisia.

In the name of Zeno (474-491)

Ex Bourgey sale 27.10.1992, collection N.K. 717.

In the name of Anastasius (491-518)

22 Solidus, Gaul, AV 4.31 g. D N ANASTA-SIVS P P AVG As no. 20. / VICTORI-A AV GGG Victory stg. l., holding long jewelled cross. In field to r., star, and, in exergue, CONOB. Perhaps not Visigothic; cf. MEC 344 (Merovingians). About as struck, extremely fine. £800

On the evidence of find-spots, this class has most recently been attributed to the Visigoths.

In the name of Justinian (527-565)

23 Solidus, Narbona or Barcelona, AV 4.40 g. D N IVST-N-INANI Pearl-diademed, cuirassed and helmeted bust facing, spear over r. shoulder and shield with horseman device on l. / VICTORI-A AV GGG Z Victory stg. l. holding long jewelled Christogrammatic cross on forked foot; in field l., star, and, in exergue, COMOB. Cf. MEC 190. Extremely fine £2,000

This rare issue shows an idiosyncratic cross and sometimes, as here, depicts the shield as folds of a paludamentum.

24 Solidus, Narbona or Barcelona, AV 4.38 g. Similar to previous, but ON IASTI-NI-ANVS b, reverse legend ends V. Kapamadji (N.K.) 1064 (these dies). Cf. MEC 191. Very fine £1,500

64 Quarter-siliqua, Sirmium, AR 0.65 g. D...ANASTAIVS P P V Pearl-diademed, draped and cuirassed bust r. / Two confronted busts holding between them long cross, beneath which, circle of five pellets; above, two annulets. Unpublished, perhaps unique. Very fine £500

In 454 Gepids and other Germanic tribes decisively defeated the Huns at the Nedao river in Pannonia. The above two coins, which may each be unique, seem to belong to the period of Gepid occupation of Sirmium, from c. 471 to the conquest of the city by Theodoric in 504/5. For a discussion of this period see Z. Demo, Ostrogothic coins from collections in Croatia, Slovenia and Bosnia & Herzegovina, 11ff. The quarter-siliquae attributed to the Gepid king Kunimundus (c. 560-567) by F. Stefan, Die Münzstätte Sirmium unter den Ostgoten und Gepiden, 1925, pl. 298, 8 and 9, see also Lanz sale 82, 1997, 876, have been convincingly reattributed by Demo (no. 194) to Athalaric in the name of Jusinian I (527-565) for the mint of Sirmium.

Intermittent wars occured between the Gepids and the Lombards from 536 to about 567, when they were finally crushed by a coalition of Lombards and Avars became submerged in Avar domains and lost to history.

THE AVARS

In the name of Heraclius (610-641)

65 Solidus, uncertain western mint after 616, AV 4.41 g. Garbled legend around and above crowned busts of Heraclius and Heraclius Constantine to front. / VICTORIA -AVSYG Cross potent on three steps; in exergue, CONOB. Cf. for general type, MIB 11. Extremely fine. £1,000

Avars, a people of undetermined origin and language played an important rôle in eastern Europe from the 6th century building a domain in the area between the Adriatic and Baltic seas and the Dnieper river. In 588, they were allied with the Lombards in the overthrow of the Gepids, allies of Byzantium, and established themselves in the Hungarian plain. The Avars often engaged in wars with Byzantium, almost occupying Constantinople in 626, and the Merovingians. After c. 650, revolt and internal discord coinciding with the creation of the Bulgarian state weakened their empire, which, however, survived until 685 when it submitted to Charlemagne.

KINGDOM OF PONTUS

518 Pharnaces I, c. 185-169. Tetradrachm, AR 16.80 g. Portrait head of Pharnaces r., the prognathous jaw lightly bearded, wearing taenia with floating ends. / ΒΑΣΙΛΕΩΣ – ΦΑΡΝΑΚΟΥ Syncretic male deity stg. three-quarter r., wearing causia, chlamys over l. arm upon which cornucopiae and kerykeion, tunic with long flap falling over loins and high-strapped boots, and extending vine-branch in r. hand to doe stg. r., beside him, looking up; in r. field, TM monogram and in upper l., star over crescent. Rec. gén. 4. Gulbenkian 932 (this obverse die) = O. Mørkholm, Early Hellenistic Coinage, 1991, 623. An impressive example of an hellenistic portrait of unflinching realism. Slight porosity on portrait, extremely fine. £10,000

As one of the least flattering royal representations ever made, very few icons of any period can match the brutal realism of the portrait of this half-Iranian, half-Greek king of Pontus, a monarch of great capacity whose ambitions anticipated those of Mithradates Eupator.

This most interesting piece, struck in silver from dies incised for gold in an impeccable Thessalonican style and at a weight corresponding almost exactly to the supposed theoretical weight of a reduced argenteus "siliqua", 2.24 g., RIC VIII, p. 58, table, should be seen as having no implications for the then monetary system, but rather as a late example of the Roman mint practice of mismatching dies with denominations either for amusement, occasionally through incompetence, or for testing the strength of the dies made for soft metal upon a harder mēdium.

An unpublished variant for this mint with new, simple, mintmark, SMANTΔ, and short-bearded portrait. Good weight and style suggest an unknown first issue, as does the lack of laurel-branches in the exergue, presumably associated with the consulship held at Antioch on 1st January 363; the emission would, then, belong to late 362.

1350 Cast lead marriage (?) token or sportula, 2.69 g. IVNONI REGINA around Juno, Queen of Heaven, std. l. / INGENIO IVVENVM TARDO around veiled female sacrificing l. from patera. Very rare and of great interest. VF £100

The obverse cult representation of Juno, protectress of marriage, is linked in theme to the reverse on which what appears to be a young woman makes an offering to the goddess "for", as the legend seems to mean, "the limited understanding of young women". Ingenium tardum, a phrase used by Cicero, may signify the modesty and restraint expected of a Roman bride; the root IUV (young, esp. woman) is that of Juno herself's name.

1351 Cast lead marriage token (?), 10.94 g. SEP/TIMI within wreath. / A-E/LIA within wreath. EF £40

LOMBARDIC PRINCES OF SALERNO

Guaifar and Guaimar I, c. 877-880.

1410 Lead seal, Pl. 31.64 g. VVΛFER VVΛMΛ Crowned, draped and cuirassed bust of Guaifar, bearded, facing; beside him, on r. crowned and draped half-length figure of Guaimar, holding sheathed sword. / MIHΛIΛ ΛRHΛNGEΛVS Archangel Michael stg. facing, draped and holding sheathed sword. Cf., for legends, L. Bellizia, Le monete della zecca di Salerno 13-18. Of considerable historical interest. Red spots on good grey tone, EF £1,500

Guaifar established a new dynasty in 861, associating with him his son Gaimar from 877, a violent time in southern Italy, caught between the competing Lombardic states and the western and eastern Empires and subject to continual Saracen incursions. He abdicated in 880 in favour of Gaimar, who allied himself with Byzantium and issued Carolingian type denari in the names of Basil I and Alexander, cf. Bellizia 19 and 20. He was later elevated to the rank of patrician by the emperors Leo VI and Alexander.

BYZANTINE SPHRAGIDES

Imperial

1523 Justinian I and Nasa, Byzantine-Ostrogothic official at Ravenna (?), 540, Pl. 11.93 g. D N IVSTINIANVS A[...] Nimbate, crowned and dr. bust three-quarter l. / NASA below draped bust facing, hair Germanically dressed. Dark grey tone, VF £350

Nasa is known only from a textual reference (mid-6th cent., Ravenna ?), Tjader, Genfer Papyrus, 179, cited in Brown, Gentlemen and Officers, p. 271. His portrait is of a type familiar from regal coinage and the Roman-Ostrogothic consular diptych tradition, for which see Dalton, p.119, fig. 120, whereas that of Justinian, characterised by the nimbus, regularly shown round the emperor's head after publication of, in 534, the divinely-inspired Codex (it had occurred sporadically before), and at its most striking on the gold multiple of 534, MIB 1, and the San Vitale mosaics, after 540, presents us with the new master of recovered Italy. We may assume that Nasa was endeavouring to pass successfully from one régime to another by endorsing the new power which under Belisarius' generalship captured Ravenna after the siege of 539-40.

The late pieces are not dealt with in Turner, but see p. 46, Ahin Posh (Afghanistan) find, three orthodox 1st-2nd cent. aurei and 17 Kushan gold staters.

1543 "Romano-Sasanid" solidus/dinar, AV 4.67 g. Pearl-diademed and draped Roman bust l. / Fire-altar schematically attended. Linear borders, legends are O's. Cf. for obverse, Turner pl. II, 186 (Gumada find, Madras), obverse in Valentinian I style, also doubly pierced, among doubly pierced "Severan" AV. Doubly pierced and plugged, otherwise VF £350

7th century issues

1544 "Byzantine" solidus, "Heraclius", AV 4.18 g. Facing bust of Heraclius and Heraclius Constantine. / Heraclius, Heraclius Constantine and Heraclonas stg. to front. Linear borders, garbled legends. VF £250

Byzantine solidi are known from India and Sri Lanka, Turner p. 90.

1545 "Byzantine" solidus, "Constans II", AV 4.12 g. Facing bust of Constans II. Cross on steps. linear borders, garbled legends. Doubly pierced, VF £250

Imitations in gold are dealt with by P. J. Turner, Roman coins from India, RNS SP 22, 1989. Later than those her brief includes, our coins nonetheless belong in the same tradition, being curiously designed and manufactured and doubly pierced almost as a matter of course, presumably for use in jewellery or as religious offerings.

IRELAND

1711 Hiberno-Norse. Imitative copy of a Phase I Athelred II Long Cross Penny with English titles and mint signature. ? + (E) DELRED RE+ AIGLIO bust Left. Rev. + HILDVLF MO (E)OFR Long cross, pellet in third quarter. This characteristic pellet may suggest a transitional issue between Phase I (995-1020) and phase II (1015-35). Unpublished and extremely rare. Peck marks, otherwise VF £1,000

The evidence of coin hoards and die links shows that these issues are contemporary with the coins of Sihtric (Dolley pp. 94 and 126). For the characteristic + for X in REX see Dolley, Hiberno-Norse Coins in the British museum (SCBI 1966), p.146 and footnote 2. "Nor is it too difficult, again as a general rule, to distinguish coins of class b (Scandinavian copies of English pennies) from those of class c (Irish copies of English pennies)". - (one) very Irish characteristic is the use of + for X. The Dublin Mint was producing imitations of Athelred's Long Cross issue which are of quite astounding fidelity (Dolley p.38). As Dr O'Sullivan in 1961 (p.5) observed "if some of the early moneyers employed by Sihtric copied in full an Athelred penny with his name and titles, it would be difficult, if not altogether impossible, to distinguish the original from the copy". (The characteristics noted by Dolley had not been identified at this time.) The Long Cross imitations are amongst coins with English titles and English mint signature that have even deceived numismatics of the calibre of Bror Emil Hildebrand (Dolley).

La produzione di questa moneta, con lo stemma partito, appartiene agli anni compresi tra l'apertura della zecca attorno al 1558 e il 1565, anno in cui Vespasiano acquista il titolo di Marchese di Sabbioneta ed é conosciuta in pochissimi esemplari. Ci sembra molto importante notare che la leggenda del rovescio si differenzia dagli esemplari del CNI, del Magnaguti e del Papadopoli per una rosetta iniziale e per l'aggiunta della S alla parola DOMINV. Ci troviamo quindi davanti ad una variante di conio che sembra essere unica.
